Project: Room Divider in Residential Projects

Products: ■ Roomflex

Location

Prehung Doors Ltd, based in London, specialise in the supply and installation of internal doors that are supplied with pre hung door hardware to allow for maximum precision during installation. The company provides standard and bespoke door sizes for those that need them, as well as hinged, pocket, sliding and folding doors - all made to measure in the companies UK factory.

The company has recently specified P C Henderson's Roomflex folding door hardware to create a room divider for two residential project's in London.

Requirements

Prehung Doors was approached by two clients with identicle design briefs - to provide a room divider which separates a large dining room and lounge into two rooms. The clients required a modern, functional design which would allow the rooms to be seamlessly opened up as one - for example when entertaining or socialising.

Solution

P C Henderson's innovative Roomflex folding door hardware was identified as the best solution for the two projects. Catering for doors weighing up to 35kg and 50kg, Roomflex allows for both open and broken plan living in the home.

Unlike other internal folding door systems, Roomflex has been designed to completely remove the need for a bottom channel. This not only creates a minimalistic finish but also eliminates any trip hazards, allowing for a seamless walkway from room to room - meeting both of the project's requirements exactly.

When open, the doors can be neatly folded to one or both sides of the aperture (depending on the door configuration), allowing the two rooms to be completely opened up as one.

Prehung Doors was able to personalise the Roomflex system to meet its client's needs - using three wooden folding doors and one swing door with glass panels on both installations. The two rooms are able to be closed off whilst still maintaining the flow of natural light through the properties.

Why P C Henderson?

"Having only been established 18 months ago, reputation is extremely important to us. We pride ourselves on the quality of our installations and exceeding customer expectations. The materials we use are a big contributing factor to this, it's important that we have confidence in our suppliers to provide the highest quality of products - which P C Henderson does", commented Moishe Grossbard, Director of Prehung Doors.

"Folding door hardware with no bottom channel is a rare product to find and one that is often requested by our customers due to its minimalistic finish and aesthetic appeal. When we discovered Roomflex in P C Henderson's product range we knew it was the perfect product for the job, we're very pleased with this product".
